Background Statistics

- United States
  - ◆ 5th highest percentage of foreign-born in its adult population (Wedgeworth, 2004)
  - ◆ "at least 40%, and perhaps as much as 52%, of the net growth in the U.S. resident population during the decade of the 1990's was due to new foreign-born immigration" (Sum, Kirsch, & Taggart, 2002, p.29).

---

ESL Student Population Data

- Diverse Characteristics
  - ◆ More than 40 percent of the over three million students in federally funded adult education program are English language learners (ELLs) (ED, 2004) representing immigrants and refugees from a wide range of nationalities and cultural backgrounds. (U.S. Department of Education, 2004)

ESL Student Population Data (cont'd)

- Literacy Levels
  - ◆ 40% of adult ESL students are in the lowest literacy functioning levels, yet they need these literacy skills to succeed in jobs and in further education. (National Reporting System for Adult Education (NRS, 2006)

Hector-Mason, A., & Shaewitz, D. (2009). Transitioning English Language Learners. 2009 National Meeting of Adult Education State Directors, March 17-19, 2009, Washington, D.C.

---

---

---

---

---

ESL Student Population Data (cont'd)

- Literacy Levels
  - ◆ In 2003, 61% of adults age 16 and older who spoke Spanish before starting school had Below Basic literacy;
  - ◆ 26% of adults who spoke a language other than English or Spanish had Below Basic literacy (compare this with 9% for English only speakers and 14% for English + Spanish speakers) (NAAL, 2003)

Hector-Mason, A., & Shaewitz, D. (2009). Transitioning English Language Learners. 2009 National Meeting of Adult Education State Directors, March 17-19, 2009, Washington, D.C.

Implication

- Growing need for English
  - ◆ "Given immigrants' growing share of our nation's citizens, workers, and families, promoting their acquisition of English is arguably the most important integration challenge—and opportunity—facing our city, state, and federal governments" (McHugh, Gelatt, & Fix, 2007, p. 3).

Who are TELLs and How can they be best supported?

---

---

---

---

---

Who are TELLs?

- TELLs have diverse backgrounds
  - ◆ Diverse Education Level
    - ESL learners have wider range of educational backgrounds than ABE learners
    - One third lack high school education
    - Education needs are greater for immigrants from Mexico (Wrigley et al, 2008; Schmidley, 2001)

Hector-Mason, A., & Shaewitz, D. (2009). Transitioning English Language Learners. 2009 National Meeting of Adult Education State Directors, March 17-19, 2009, Washington, D.C.

Who are TELLs? (cont'd)

- Types of TELLs
  - ◆ Students with higher education levels - students with higher levels of education who exit ESL with goals such as taking the GED test and moving to post secondary education.
  - ◆ Students who need to enter ABE from ESL to fill educational gaps and build their literacy skills before they are ready for higher learning.

Things to consider to Support TELLS

- Programmatic Matters
  - ◆ Small number of ELLs enrolling from adult ELL programs to post-sec is small
    - A large scale study showed only 12% of ESL students went on to enroll in college credit courses (Price & Jenkins, 2005)
    - Another study showed that only 5-10% of GEO students (both ELL and non-ELL) complete at least one year of post sec. (Tyler, 2003)

---

---

---

Things to consider to Support TELLS

- Programmatic Matters
  - ◆ Address non-academic factors
    - Transportation
    - Childcare
    - Provide orientation to students
      - Provide students with information about time management, stress management, study skills, etc (Alamprese, 2005)

Things to consider to Support TELLS

- Programmatic Matters
  - ◆ Address academic factors
    - Use content based ESL instruction to improve academic preparedness in adults (Brinton & Masters, 1997)
  - ◆ Promote strong collaboration between ESL program destination points
  - ◆ Help students tackle transition barriers
    - Societal, Systems, Institutional, Personal (see handout)

TELL Program Selection Criteria

- Three Fundamental Principles
  - Data – Systematic Collection of Information
    - Learner entry & exit; Learner transition numbers; Learner outcomes & gains; Learner Characteristics; Learner persistence
  - Mechanisms – Coherent Systems
    - Program Design, Administration and Policy; Professional development and training; Intake-Exit Coordination; Support systems/Collaborations
  - Strategies – Coherent Plans and Policies
    - Instructional Strategies (Curriculum and Instruction); Assessment and program evaluation

TELL Program Selection - Information Screening Results

- What emerged from a review of information received from sites?
  - Two prevailing types of transition processes

Two Prevailing Transition Processes
Distinct	Indistinct
Program has well defined transition class (or set of classes) that is physically situated and that is instructionally and programmatically designed for the purposes of preparing distinct ESL student cohorts for ABE, ASE, or GED classes.	Program does not have a well defined transition class or program, but has varied programmatic and instructional practices said to promote transitioning.

The Future of TELL

- If you have a TELL program(s) in your state:
  - ◆ Describe the program(s). What lessons did you learn in the development of this program? What might you do differently?
- If you do not have a TELL program in your state:
  - ◆ What challenges/opportunities do you see in your system to start a TELL program? What would you need to start a TELL Program?
